The Spa at Willow Bend is a world-class spa that opened five months ago. As Director, I've been amazed that even during our depressed economic times the spa's business has been thriving.

While we offer cutting edge treatments that include state of the art lasers, the main ingredient to our success has been the Intraceuticals Oxygen Infusion Treatment.

A large part of this success comes from Dr. Samuel Lam, a facial plastics surgeon, who gives his post-operative patients a complimentary oxygen facial. The nutrients in the serums combined with the hyperbaric oxygen aids in the healing and recovery process of our patients. Bruising as well as swelling is substantially reduced. And, once the patient experiences these results they are more inclined to purchase a series of Intraceuticals oxygen treatments to maintain the investment they made in their plastic surgery procedure.

Our bodies need oxygen to survive and nutrients to maintain good health . . . our skin is the largest organ on our body so it makes perfect sense to feed and replenish our skin on a regular basis with nutrients and oxygen . . . the reason Intraceuticals works!
