

Acne Treatment for Adults

I was impressed with the packaging of the Clarity Blemish Repair by IntraCeuticals: a slim box containing a bold, purple and silver-tipped, click-it pen, and 15 individual tips containing doses of treatment to fight blemishes. Single dose of anti-acne treatment is the idea behind this product, that carries a hefty price tag of $89.00 for the pen, and 15 treatment tips (an additional replacement packette of 15 tips is $29.00). But this Australian company's product doesn't just help to deal with breakouts, it also has blend of actives that help to reduce inflammation without dryness or flaking. The product should be used twice a day, but considering that the unique tip is designed to be replaced daily to avoid contamination, this could become a pricey consideration,. Still, it has some reasonable arguments that make it a potential "find." Yes, it works well, and I love the idea that you can direct the thin, sponge tipped applicator just on the zit, and not all over your face. Dry patches-begone! The price means that his product won't work for everyone's budget, but it might make more sense if you travel frequently. The discreet and portable pen applicator makes it easy to deal with and it's made in heaven for an acne prone road warrior. If occasional acne is your issue, you might also consider it as worthwhile, since each tip is sealed and waiting to be activated. Unless you throw out your acne cream every six months or so, if you don't use it up, you will probably find that the current acne cream in your closet that you counted on to zap your current zit, is now dried up, changed in consistency, or it's potency is now, questionable. With this IntraCeuticals product, the right, fresh dose, will always be available.
